

Anything that threatens choice in media or communications access is a bad idea. As the re-merging of ATT & SBC demonstrates, there is no way to keep large corporations from trying to take advantage of their size to increase profits. Profits are fine, but look at the record billions Exxon Mobil declared on 1/31/05 while many Americans are forced to change their lifestyles or go without in order to pay for high priced gasoline. Please allow choice to survive on the internet.